

Criminal Investigations Training Group

CITGROUP

Death Investigations
January 24- February 4th, 2022
Miami, Florida.

Fred Ponce PSY.M.

24 years City Of Miami Police Department

15 years Homicide Investigator

13 years FDLE Certified Instructor

Masters Forensic Psychology Nova Southeastern University

Owner; CITGROUP

Criminal Investigations Training Group

Memberships

International Homicide Investigators Association

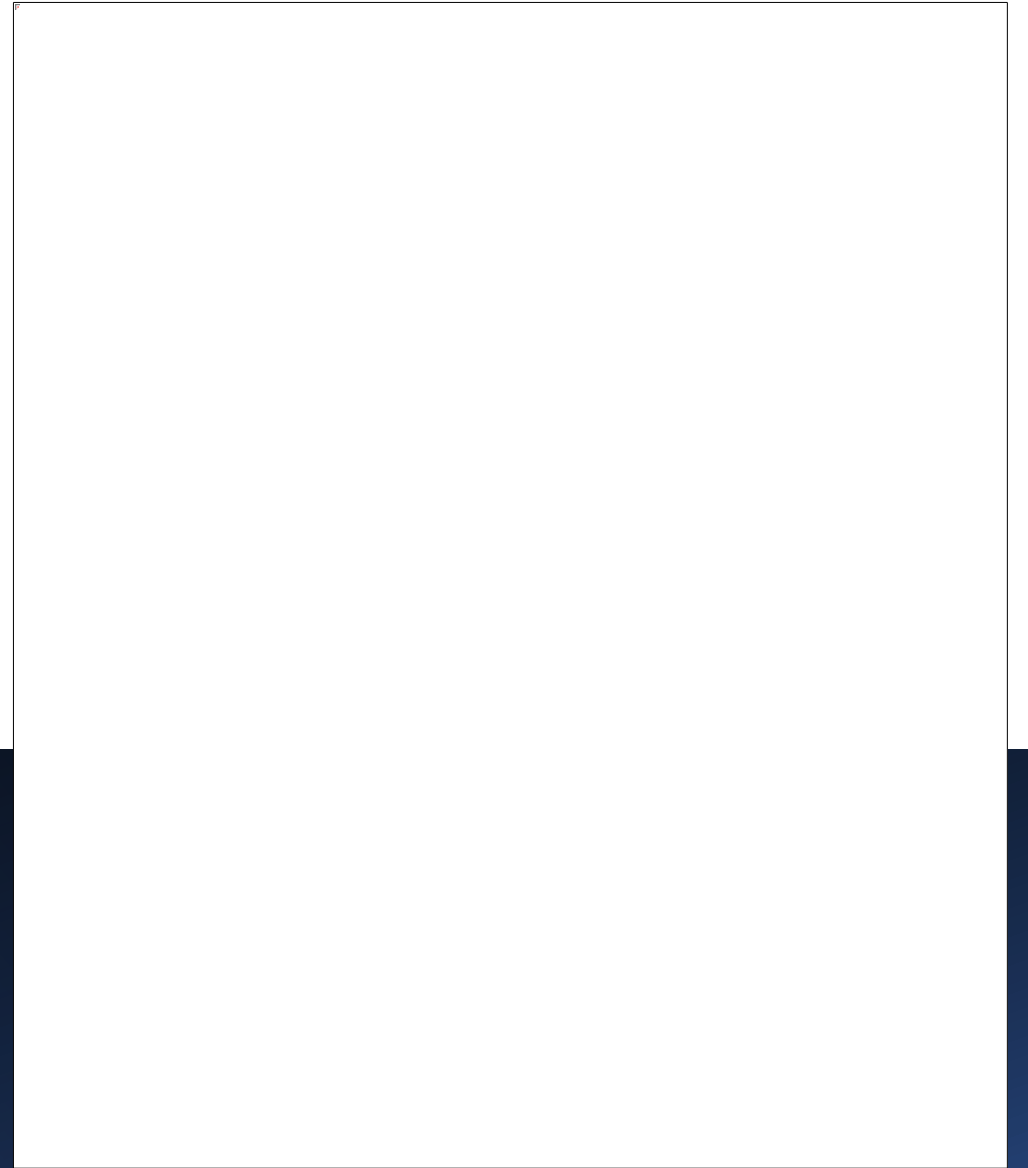

National Homicide Investigators Association

American Academy of Forensic Sciences

National Forensic Academy Class # 55

United States Military

The Investigative Problem

What is the problem and how to solve it?

A problem, by its very nature, has two elements.

One is that it requires a solution, a goal or objective.

The second is that it has variables, the conditions and obstacles that describe the problem in the first place.

Without both of those elements, you do not have a problem.

Problems have Variables with Constraints.

What are our constraints?

- Laws to abide by
- Policies
- Lack of resources,
- Technology,
- Manpower
- The right person to solve it

“No Problem I got this”

Homicide Investigations Elements of the Problem

The identity of the victim

The identity of the offender

Prove the offender is responsible

Prove the case in court